Dedication: joe secrest

We could dedicate this yearbook to Joe Secrest because of his great efforts and achievements as director of the music department, his sincerity and dedication to the students and the college, his establishment of an outstanding music program, or any number of other good reasons—but we aren't. This book is dedicated to Joe Secrest because he is a great guy.

we offer thee, manhattan, our pledge of loyalty . . .

Loyalty can be expressed in many forms. Loyalty to the basketball or the baseball team is only a small part of the picture. The students of MBC have also shown their loyalty this year by their promotion of the school. The two best examples are MBC Day, aimed at prospective students, parents, church affiliates, and community; and Parents' Day, which gave the parents a chance to become better acquainted with the school. Loyalty is also reflected on the school by Project Lift, a money raising campaign which is supported by many churches. In all these, we express our loyalty to God through our College.

MBC Day

Not Later But Now was the theme for this year's MBC Day, as the band, choir, and many other groups from the student body provided entertainment during the Omnibus Hour. Dick Messner, pictured below, provided additional music with his trumpet, and there was also a challenging message from a guest speaker.

Over 600 people attended the evening banquet, which was the highlight of MBC Day. Besides the food, there were also entertainment by both the Mabicos and Dick Messner. Of course, something just had to be said, as Dale Parker, below, starts things off by addressing the audience.

Project Lift

Living Investment Forward Thrust is the meaning behind the word LIFT. In this program Manhattan Bible College seeks the financial aid from many different churches. The community of Manhattan also sponsored a fund raising program for MBC. At left, Larry Garrett and Dale Parker put up the thermometer which gauged the success of the program.

Basketball

Athletics give a chance for individuals to develop in many ways. The basketball team at Manhattan has helped develop sportsmanship and other qualities in both the team and the supporters. Our team provides both a good Christian witness, and an exciting game.

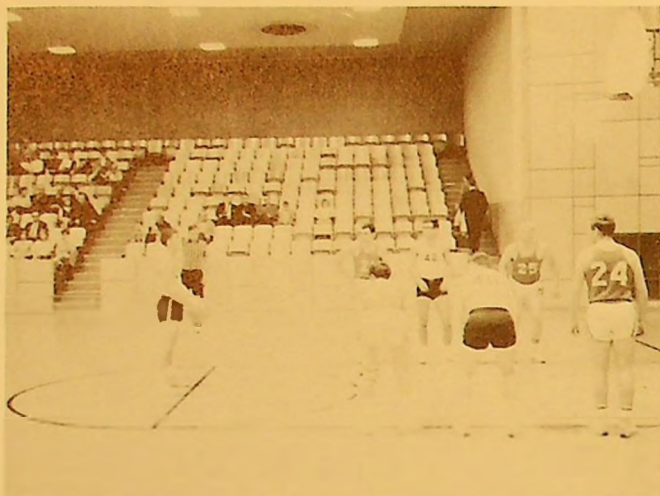

The Crusader team compiled an impressive record this season as they finished second in league play and took a third place in tournament action. Standing below are Larry Hammons, Charles Smith, Ed Preston, Van VanDeusen, Mike Kelly, and coach Charles Cayton. Bottom row: David Keller, Doug Ingmire, Dallas Love, Phil Edwards, and Don Wilson.

Students and faculty enjoy watching the action during season play, as the pep band adds its support to the team. At right, Charles Smith goes up for a lay-up during a practice game. Melanie Edwards sells tickets to the fans during the tournament games, which were held in Manhattan's municipal building.

Ed Preston returns the ball hard to Don Wilson during a heated table tennis game. Preston and his partner, Doug Delong, took first in the doubles tournament, and Ed also took first in the singles matches.

Other Sports

Other athletic activities include the school's summer slow pitch softball team, the cross country team, and a lot of ping pong playing.

FOR CHRIST'S eternal kingdom, the finest we can BE . . .

Both the mind and the heart must be prepared for the future service of Christ's kingdom. The students of Manhattan Bible College prepare their hearts by continual worship, devotions, and prayer; and their minds are improved by their classes and study.

Chapel

During the year, both Thursday morning and Tuesday evening chapel services were held. These services give an opportunity for outside speakers, students, and faculty to speak to the student body. This year we received new hymnals, and one of the first to break them in was Prof. Secrest. They were then given a good work out in chapel, as Don Wilson, below, leads the singing. Middle: students come happily from the chapel service.

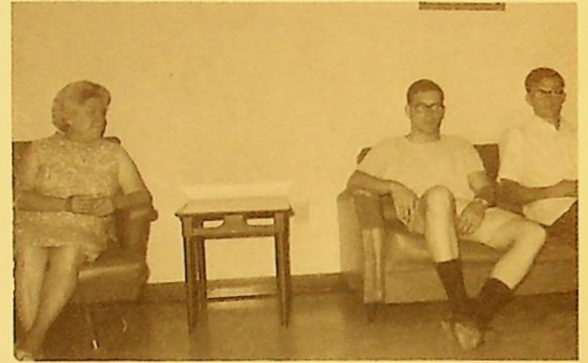

Other aspects of worship include the preaching convention and the spring revival. Leon Appel, above, spoke during the convention, as Bob Morehead, far left, provided the messages for the revival. Jack Busby, song evangelist for the revival, led several informal song services.

Devotions

Students at MBC also have a chance for personal devotions and prayer. A prayer circle is held daily at 9:30 in the lounge, students take time to personally thank God at mealtime, and the prayer room in the chapel is utilized by many students. Devotions are held in the dorms on Monday through Thursday nights, as students share their thoughts before retiring.

Classes

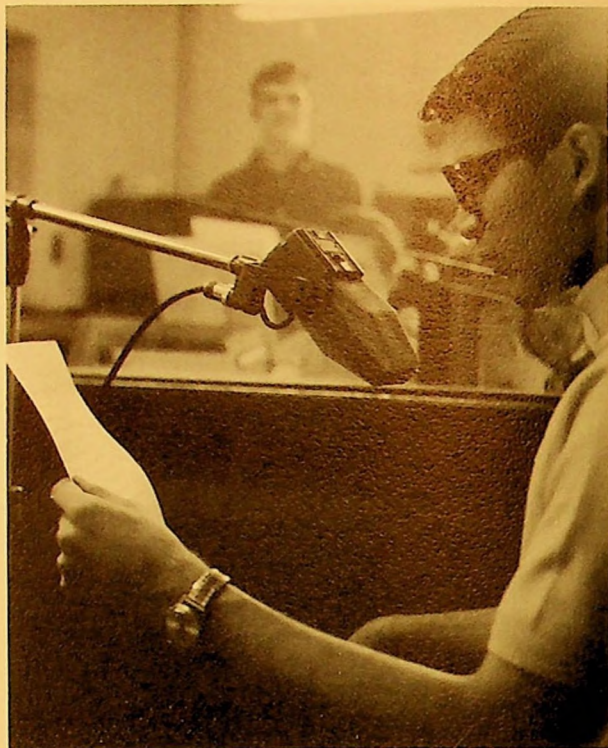

A very profound but little known philosopher once said: "To many, classes are only a necessary evil of college, but without classes, there would be no college."

Bottom: Many classes at MBC open with prayer, thanking God for the privilege of learning, and asking His guidance on the class. Right: Ann Smith shows official Indian dress to the C.E. class. The band, above, rehearses for a future performance under the direction of Mr. Secrest. Roy Cronk leads a discussion during a class period.

Larry McCracken practices his radio technique during broadcasting class.

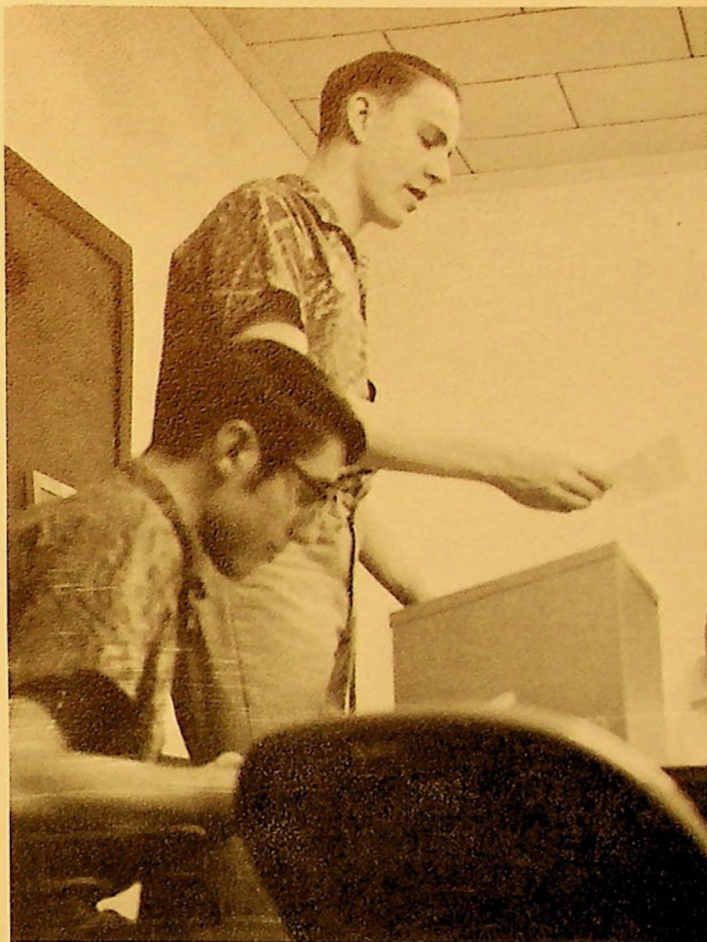

Dean Stanke always finds time for some good class discussions.

Moods vary before class begins.

Spence Moore sets up broadcasting booth.

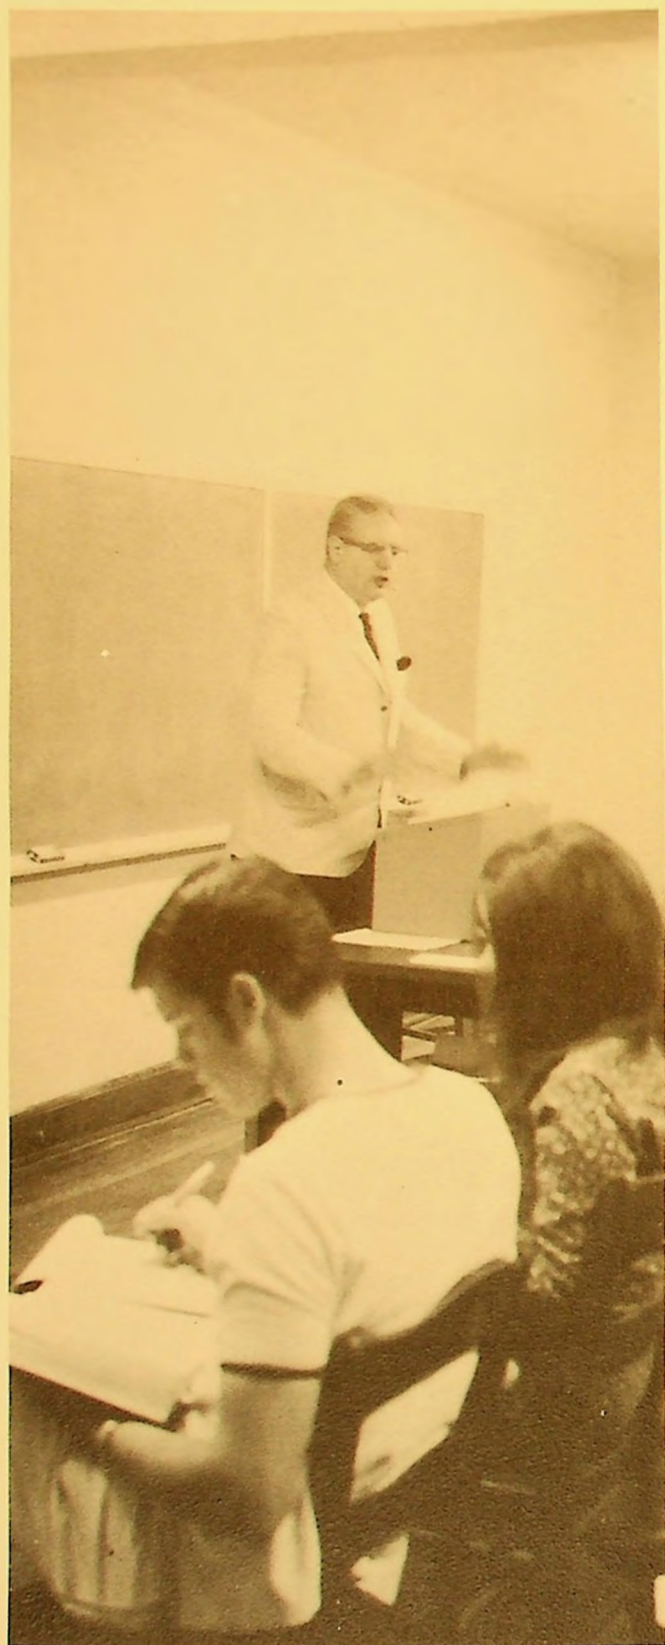

David Keller and Ed Preston battle it out with Mike Albert and Ross Carlson during debate class.

Mr. Litke casts his ballot in the Student Council elections.

Phil Hoyle directs choir under the direction of Mrs. McCreedy.

OUR COLLEGE AND OUR MASTER, TO SERVE COURAGEOUSLY . . .

Service is a most important part of college life, for, as James 2:26 says, "For as the body apart from the spirit is dead, so faith apart from works is dead." Service at MBC is provided in several ways. The faculty and staff perform a great service as both leaders and teachers. Students serve by conducting programs at nearby rest homes, by serving as student ministers, and by participating in gospel teams.

Staff

It takes many staff members to keep a college operating. The staff at MBC includes: (top) Martha Amlong, Librarian; (middle) John Dreher, custodian; Ethel Dreher, dietician; (bottom) Deanie Garrett, receptionist; and Mike Hines, public relations.

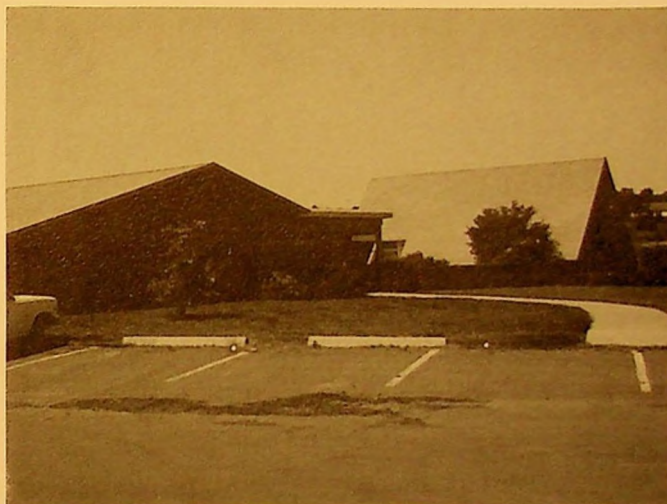

"Mom" White doubles as a bookkeeper and the housemother for the men's residence hall, and "Mom" Phillips is the housemother for the women's residence hall. They seem to be standing up well under the pressure from a "family" of 60. Don Paden helps public relations with photography work, and is in charge of the building and grounds. Evelyn Press is the secretary to the President and the Dean. Marge Radney serves as secretary and printer for public relations. The meals for the students are, of course, prepared by the kitchen staff. Not pictured is Glennie Baker, the secretary for development.

Student Services

The student body holds a weekly service for the Wharton Manor and the IOOF rest homes. The students bring the elderly music, a message, and most of all, great Christian fellowship. Seeing the faces of these people light up on the arrival of the students for the service is a real joy.

Wharton Manor, right, is an up to date building, while IOOF, below, is older. Doug Ingmire leads the services in the dimly lit chapel of the IOOF home, while two of the residents accompany the hymns with their violins.

Student Ministry

The student ministry, or "week end church," is another service provided by the students of MBC. Small churches that cannot afford a full time minister hire a student who preaches on Sundays and does other work for the church. This gives the church a concerned leader, and the student experience in handling problems and plenty of preaching practice.

Preaching and meeting people are only a small part of a student ministry, as Leslie Rock knows. Les was the minister of Latham Christian Church for a year and a half. At right, Gary Gooszen prepares his sermon for Sunday morning. Gary serves the Christian Church in Rock, Kansas. Dean Stanke, above right, talks to those interested in becoming student ministers at the beginning of the year.

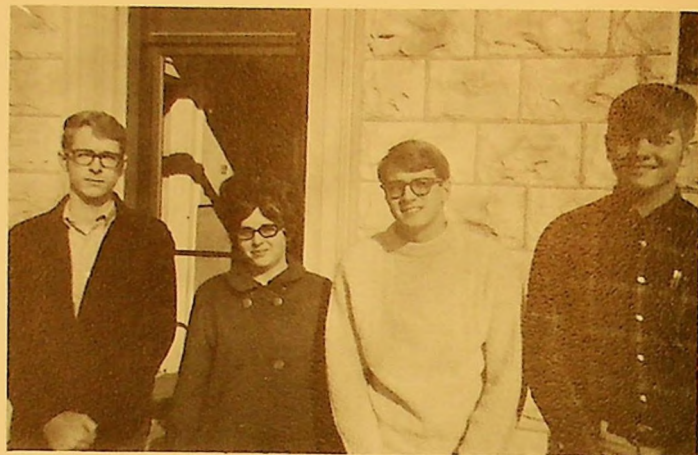

Gospel Teams

A gospel team is made up of any number of students who have any number of talents. These teams go out to many churches and people as they provide either music and talent for a service, or the entire service. President Lown, below, travels with many gospel teams as they represent MBC.

The Shalom Singers, above, include Linda Weeks, Wava Severns, Letitia Trickey, and Dave Williams. This group is preparing to go on tour in many states this summer. The Alethians, bottom left, give many performances each year. This quartet consists of Dave Erwin, Haven Oberhelman, Deana Burton their accompanist, Anita Newton, and Ron Howard.

As every gospel team knows, it takes a lot of practice to give a good performance. Each individual must also work on improvement of his talents, as the Shaloms and Deanna Burton show in these candid shots.

The gospel team of Bob Sieh, Miss Lamb, Ross Carlson, and Mike Albert represented MBC at French Lick, Indiana. The Messengers, a trumpet trio of Marty Tomek, Larry Jansen, and Barbara Osborne, played at several churches. The Messengers, their pianist Donna Jewett, Patsy Green, and Dean Edwards represented MBC at the youth rally in Denver, Colorado.

manhattan, alma mater, hail, all hail to thee.

Student life and Christian fellowship are the essence of our college life. The memories of the good and the bad times, the fun, the togetherness, the joy of just being alive, the classes, the devotions, the sharing, the studying, the walking with God—these make Manhattan our real Alma Mater, a part of us, a part of our lives.

Student Life

Numerous engagements this year required some action by the student body, as Marty Tomek found out. Her dunking signifies the successful luring and hooking of an eligible male, and it is all in good fun. Center: the kitchen help hustles to prepare the meals. Below: Mom Phillips slips back for seconds at breakfast. Center and bottom right: The scene above leads to the scene below. Neither snow nor rain nor sleet nor hardly anything else changes this ritual.

These are some typical scenes on the MBC campus: left; the girl's lounge is an often used resting place; Dave Keller is not in trouble as usual, but he works on a play with Larry Kuhl and Sandy Gates; Van Van Dusen relaxes at nearby Tuttle Creek. Top: Dave Erwin rests as a discussion continues below.

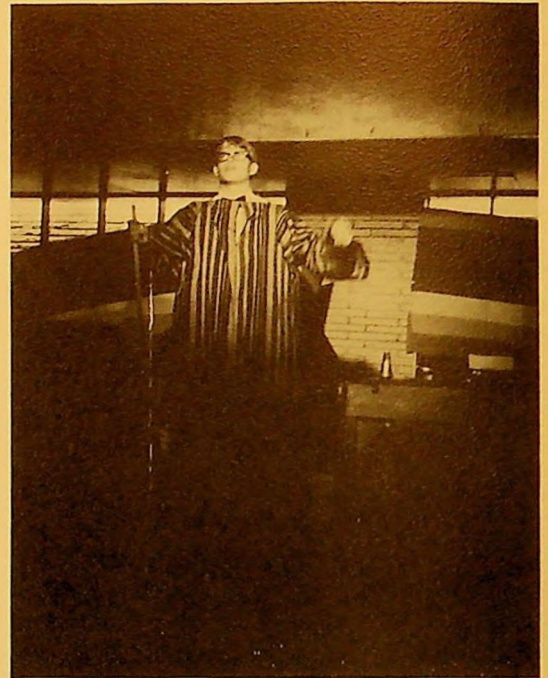

Parties

The girl's campfire was somewhat of a wash-out after a raid from the men's dorm dampened their activities. Bottom: Jim and Coleen Gile entertain at the Spring Banquet. Center right: Scott Penning gives his commentary on "Noah" at the banquet.

The Last Days

The last few days of school contain many different things for each student. Donna Jewett, right, takes time for some relaxation and practice in the music room. Center: Ed Towne struggles his way through a final exam, and Arvin Moden is either receiving aid or being consoled by Dean Edwards. Below: A true challenge is trying to cram everything you have into your car so you can make it home in just one trip. Bottom right: A deserted, lonely classroom—the aftermath of a school year.
